IT is the ideal of the League to make the schoolhouse a temple worthy to receive, and fitted to inspire, the children of all the people to the dignity of free citizenship in the Republic.

We urge, first of all, that the school buildings be of good architecture, attractive without, and worthy to receive adornment within.

We would decorate the corridors, rooms, and halls, with reproductions of the masterpieces of art, — photographs, casts, and, should our means ever permit, with the more costly works of art, selecting, arranging, and grouping according to the grade and mental range of the pupils concerned.

This movement, though still in its infancy, has already produced visible results, not only in Boston and in many other cities and towns in New England, but throughout the entire country, being taken up with a zeal which would seem incredible to those who see in art only a form of luxury.

The work began in Boston in 1871, with the decoration of the hall in the Girls' High School. In 1883 (School Document 20) the Boston School Committee suggested help and action in line with the movement of the English Committee, headed by John Ruskin.

Not long afterwards, in Salem, Mr. Ross Turner, feeling the lack of appreciation for all things artistic in America, when he saw the handsome Phillips School building just completed, thought that here, in the schoolroom with the children, was the place to begin, if America was ever to appreciate such things. He found the school authorities, teachers, and pupils most ready to coöperate. A considerable sum of money was raised, and the result was the decoration of four rooms in the Phillips School building with large solar prints and casts; the city tinting the walls at its own expense. The spaces for pictures were filled with regard to size, nothing being sacrificed to mere ornamentation. One room was decorated as a Roman room, another as American, the third with subjects of the Italian Renaissance, and the fourth with Egyptian subjects. The room of the Italian Renaissance is perhaps the most complete and interesting. Here the light was cold and cheerless in effect, and to offset this the walls were tinted with a light Venetian red. For decoration, five large casts of the bas-relief of Luca della Robbia were used. The large space at the end of the room was adorned with a large photograph of the "Aurora," by Guido Reni.

The Colonial Room has busts of Washington, Lafayette, John Adams, pictures of Mount Vernon, Independence Hall at Philadelphia, etc. This school was also presented with a fine engraving (one of the few rare ones of 1801) of the battle of Bunker Hill. This attempt at the decoration of the Phillips School attracted instant attention among the friends of education everywhere. The school was visited by large numbers of people from all parts of the United States, Canada, and even from Europe.

Other buildings that have been in part decorated in Salem are the Bentley, Bertram, Saltonstall, and High schools.

In May, 1892, the Public School Art League was formed in Boston, being the first attempt to organize the movement on a large scale, and sufficient funds were collected to decorate two rooms, a petition having been presented to the School Board. Among the twenty-four names attached to this petition were those of Phillips Brooks, Edward Everett Hale, Julia Ward Howe, Francis A. Walker, Eben N. Horsford, and Charles G. Loring. As a result of the favorable action of the School Board, a room in the English High School was decorated with photographs and casts pertaining to Roman art and history.

A room in the Rice Primary School was also decorated with pictures and casts, mainly relating to American history.

In 1894, the Agassiz School, Burroughs Street, Jamaica Plain, with the coöperation of the principal of the school and under the leadership of Mr. Walter Gilman Page, then a member of the Boston School Board, was decorated. The large assembly hall was hung with pictures illustrative of American history, such as "Washington Crossing the Delaware," portraits of Washington, Lafayette, Adams, etc., etc.

The upper corridor contains busts of Hamilton, Webster, Sumner, Phillips, Agassiz, and Mann. The middle corridor is filled with casts taken from subjects of Italian and Grecian art, such as six slabs from the Parthenon frieze, "Boys and Girls Singing and Playing on Instruments," by Luca della Robbia, a statue of Sophocles, busts of Zeus, Apollo, Diana, Minerva, etc.

The lower corridor contains busts of Washington, Franklin, Jefferson, Lincoln, Grant, etc.

Class Room No. 6 is to be decorated with subjects pertaining to English history. At present it contains busts of Sir Isaac Newton and Shakespeare. Additions will be made by successive graduating classes.

MEMORIAL ROOMS

THE decoration of a room in the Latin School, Warren Avenue, with subjects pertaining directly to the war of the Revolution, was permitted by the generosity of one of the descendants of Samuel Adams, under direction of Mr. Page.

Also one of the halls of the Horace Mann School, on Newbury Street, was splendidly decorated under the personal supervision of Mr. Ross Turner.

The style is Renaissance, though there are some casts from the antique.

The walls are tinted a soft Pompeian red, and the woodwork is oak.

At one end of the room is a small stage, and just above it is a memorial panel, on a gold background. The ornaments and lettering are white and green, in Renaissance design.

To the right and to the left of the stage are two pedestals, also richly ornamented; on these stand two fine Japanese vases, of pale greenish hue, unadorned save with their own color. On certain occasions these are filled with flowers.

On the walls, to the right and left, are busts of Apollo Belvidere and Minerva.

On one large panel of the wall are two bas-reliefs from the Elgin marbles. On the opposite side are placed busts of Washington and Lincoln.

The electric fixtures for lighting the room are also designed to give further effect to the Renaissance feeling of the decoration.

GILBERT STUART SCHOOL

IN May, 1897, in recognition and in appreciation of the naming of this school after one of the most distinguished of American painters, the Boston artists, at a meeting held at the Boston Art Club, voted to issue a circular to the members of their profession in Boston, asking for contributions of pictures in oil, watercolor, pastel, or black and white, to adorn the walls of the principal's room.

In consequence, the school contains a collection of original works of art, many of them signed by men of wide reputation and high standing in the artistic world. This school is the most complete as to wall tinting in the city of Boston.

THE HIGH SCHOOL AT MEDFORD

HIS is one of the best illustrations of a decorated school building, and is due to the efforts of Mr. Dunham and others.

On the first floor are pictures of the Landing of Columbus, Departure of the Pilgrim Fathers; pictures of American scenery, such as Yellowstone Falls, Niagara Falls, Pike's Peak, Mt. Shasta, Yosemite Valley, the Muir Glacier, Mt. Mitchell; portraits of George Washington, Martha Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Grant, Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes, Emerson, Hawthorne, Lowell, Irving; the library being decorated with pictures of Venetian and English scenes, famous cathedrals, palaces, and châteaux; and photographs of many of the masterpieces of art, as, for instance, The Last Judgment, by Michael Angelo; The Last Supper, by Leonardo da Vinci; The Transfiguration, by Raphael; and The Immaculate Conception, by Donatello.

The other floors and rooms are decorated with equal richness, space forbidding a detailed account.

THE APPLETON STREET SCHOOL, HOLYOKE, MASS.

HIS school is also very interesting, being especially well furnished with portraits of distinguished persons and photographs of noted buildings.

Also, in Quincy, Brookline, Malden, Wollaston, Auburn, N. Y., Brooklyn, N. Y., Providence, R. I., New Haven, Conn., Chicago, Ill., Oakland, Cal., and many other places, the work has been taken up with zeal, and tangible results have been obtained.

WORK OF SOCIETIES

ANY societies and clubs have taken up the work, societies of women, in particular, doing loyal service. Among the societies contributing are the following: —

Society of Sons of the Revolution, in the Commonwealth.

Paul Revere Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution.
Woman's Relief Corps.
Appalachian Mountain Club.
Twentieth Century Club.
Women's Educational and Industrial Union.

ADDRESSES AT CONVENTIONS, ETC.

R. PAGE addressed the American Institution of Instruction, 1895, the Worcester County Teachers' Association, 1896, and gave addresses at many other minor meetings of clubs, associations, etc.

Mr. Turner has given numerous addresses upon this subject, particularly in Boston, Lynn, Malden, Melrose, Manchester, N. H., Dover, N. H., Auburn, N. Y., and Buffalo, N. Y.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS

T would be our desire to give as many practical hints and suggestions as possible, such information as school authorities and others interested are most desirous of receiving; and for that reason we insert chapters on the following topics: —

TINTING OF THE WALLS

A consideration of the subject of wall-tinting led to unexpected results, namely, that the glaring white of the walls of our schoolrooms was not only inartistic but actually injurious to the pupils' eyes, straining and weakening them; and further consideration led to the welcome fact that art and hygiene were here at one, namely, that the tints which would rest and please the eye were also those which were most artistic, such as soft gray-greens or delicate shades of dull blue, while for halls and corridors terra cotta tones afford a contrast to the class rooms. Tints should be laid on in flat washes, the depth of color used should depend upon the lighting of the room; ceilings must be tinted, as they reflect light. In general, thus, the tints are to be selected according to the situation of the room and the lighting of it.

One of the questions most often asked is, "Where can we obtain a list of suitable reproductions of works of art?" We append, in answer, the following lists, first that of Mr. Arthur Astor Carey, whose collection of photographs is the most complete single list that has yet been put together, and is now on exhibition in the Boston Public Library; secondly, that of Mr. Walter Gilman Page; and, thirdly, a list of works of art for schoolroom decoration by a joint committee representing the Boston Art Students' Association, Conference of Educational Workers, and the Public School Art League.

LETTERS

One may judge of the active interest in this work, and the swift appreciation of it, by the letters which have been received from all parts of the country, showing eagerness for information and a desire to practically carry out all suggestions.

Fourteenth and Alice Streets,
Oakland, Cal., September 16, 1894.
(43 Mt. Vernon Street, Boston.)

Mr. Ross Turner.

My dear Sir, — Knowing of the very humble efforts I have made in my California home for some time past, in the way of stimulating an interest in art in an educational sense, my friends, Mrs. Frank Kimball and Mrs. Grace Oliver, have promised to give me the pleasure of an introduction to your work in Salem. As they are not likely to be in Salem for some time, and as I may be called back to California soon, I hasten to write and ask, if you are in Salem, if I may have the pleasure of speaking with you upon the subject. At Caproni's this morning I was made all the more enthusiastic by hearing of the Art League among the students in the public schools. Finding that Mrs. Whitman is also away, and despairing of help, I have come to the point directly, as you see.

With all due apologies,

Yours very truly, Emma S. Howard.

Office Superintendent Public Schools,
St. Louis, Mo., February 24, 1897.

Mr. Walter Gilman Page.

Dear Sir, — I am in receipt of a letter from P. P. Caproni and Brother, referring me to you in regard to an exhibit of desirable art works for schoolroom decoration. We are to have in St. Louis during April a meeting of the Western Drawing Teachers' Association, and I am very anxious to increase the interest in good schoolroom decoration. Mr. Caproni seemed to think that you would give me some suggestions on this subject. I am at sea as to whom I ought to write to find out the best list of works for school work.

If it is not imposing upon your time, will you let me hear from you in regard to this?

Yours sincerely, (Mrs.) M. E. Riley,
Supervisor of Drawing.

Office City Superintendent of Schools,
Lynchburg, Va., October 21, 1893.

Mr. Ross Turner, Salem, Mass.

Dear Sir, — I have read of the movement in Salem and other places towards the beautifying of our schoolrooms, and observe that the officials all refer to you as the originator of the movement and the wisest adviser of those interested in it. I desire to make a beginning in this line by decorating my lowest primary room. Can you give me any points that will be of use to me in the selection of pictures, busts, etc.?

An answer will greatly oblige

Yours very truly, E. C. GLASS.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 24, 1897.

MR. WALTER GILMAN PAGE.

DEAR SIR, — Can you send me some information regarding the work of the Public School Art League of Boston?

The Woman's Union of Rochester are trying to do some work in the line of schoolroom decoration, and would be glad to hear something of what has been done in Boston.

Very truly yours, M. L. HALL.

MRS. E. H. HALL.

NEWPORT, N. H., January 12, 1897.

MR. WALTER GILMAN PAGE.

DEAR SIR, — Will you please inform me of whom I can obtain a copy of the pamphlet on "Interior Decoration of Schoolhouses," of which I understand you are the author? As we are nearing the time when we shall decide on the tinting or painting of the walls of the Richard School building, it is desirable to avoid any mistake as to the color. The plastering on walls is "trowel finish," and "brush finish" on ceiling. Our architects are Wilson & Webber.

Respectfully yours,

D. J. MOONEY,

Chairman of Building Committee.

THE POLITICO-ECONOMIC CLUB OF WELD COUNTY, COLO.

GREELEY, COLO., May 28, 1892.

MR. ROSS TURNER, Salem, Mass.

MY DEAR SIR, — Miss Isabel Howland called my attention to some of your art work in the schools. Could I not arrange with you to have one or two pictures sent, to see how they would do for our schools here, and see if we cannot arrange to increase the interest in good works of art. Would want some of the cheap framing that you recommend, with some idea of the expense. You need not send them at once, but give me some idea of the expense, and what could be available, and I will then make remittance before shipment.

Very truly yours,

FRED E. SMITH, Treasurer.

MR. WALTER GILMAN PAGE,

DEAR SIR, — One of our correspondents writes us asking for a "list of one hundred works of art for schoolroom decoration, prepared by a joint committee representing the Boston Art Students' Association, the New England Conference of Educational Works, and the Public School Art League." We are advised by Mr. Ossian H. Lang that we can obtain from you the desired information concerning this list, and write to ask you to kindly send us any information you can that will be useful to our correspondent.

Trusting to be favored with your early reply, we are

Yours very truly,
